BRING IT HOME

Arlo & Jacob presents the Archie ottoman – its deep-buttoned detailing and sculpted wooden legs on castors make it a delightful addition to spaces both old and new. This standout piece, showcased here in Linwood's Bibi Chitgar Ginger Biscuit fabric, is available in two sizes and priced from £1,095.

SHINE A LIGHT

Interior designer Tamsin Saunders introduces a limited lighting collection available from homeandfound.com, a collaborative effort with her daughter, fine artist Freya Marton. There are five hand-painted base options – the Polina lamp, priced at £750, is a tribute to Ukrainian folk art and named after the artist Polina Raiko. A portion of proceeds will support the Disasters Emergency Committee Ukraine Appeal.

DESIGN WEEK NEWS

Design Centre Chelsea Harbour once again gets ready to host Design Week (11 to 15 March) and there is much to look forward to. Explore the latest showrooms, such as a new space designed by architect Nick Leith-Smith for The Rug Company, where you can view the latest collections, Softscapes and Mohair Ripples, inspired by the natural patterns found in Japanese landscapes. Shown is Ori Gold handloom silk, from £2,344. French brands Casamance and Misia have chosen the Design Centre as their London home. The new showroom seamlessly blends the modern textures and patterns of Casamance's fabrics, wallpapers and wallcoverings with Misia's avant-garde style and glamorous fabrics. Shown is Adachi panoramic wallcovering, 400x300cm, £1,932, Casamance. In addition, British luxury bespoke mattress and bed maker Vispring has announced the opening of its second London showroom in the South Dome. Explore its range of luxury beds, including the Classic, Luxe and Original collections, featuring products such as the Herald mattress, priced from £2,595. And alongside a series of talks and a full events program, the Design Avenue will host a line-up of special guests, including the highly anticipated appearances of Salvesen Graham and Samantha Todhunter. →
